

At least two feet of sea level rise is likely by 2100 and reducing emissions now can lower future risk

Earth monitoring systems are vital for tracking future sea level rise